PLUTONIUM

Elizabethada A. Wright, Ph.D.*
Associate Professor, Division of Liberal Arts (English & Communications), Rivier College

Rays expose us
When we walk through dark museum halls
And see the glow in every painting’s Christ’s face
And the glow from a rock
That should not speak

When she returned to her shed,
the sainted Mary again,
leading her husband,
telling him not to light the lights, and was the first modern woman to witness the Holy glow from nothing more than purified earth.

And named for the damned, they damned us, these saints Generations before
Burning holes in Marie Curie’s hands
When she and Einstein once went for a walk by the sea
Maybe thinking of daughters.
They had to have known.

But the search was for Hitler Exclusively for him.
The children planned
To defeat Lucifer with God’s creation
But when their telescopes sailed past Uranus
They had to have known.

and the morning mum shimmering against a cloudless sky sees God

God has visited us. First Trinity. Then, like the sun, the East.
God may be hiding there Furious we’ve come looking,

Or maybe urging us on.

* Dr. ELIZABETHADA A. WRIGHT, Associate Professor of English and Communication at Rivier College, has a Ph.D. in Communication and Rhetoric from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, an M.A. from Columbia University in English Literature, and a B.A. from Hamilton College in English. Before entering the field of academics, she worked as a stage director and dramaturge in New York, and she occasionally does some work in theatre still. Co-producer and co-host of the Portsmouth Community Radio show Portsmouth at Large, Liz also writes on nineteenth-century women’s writing as well as the subject of collective memory.