Pets at Work

Rivier University prohibits animals inside University buildings with the exception of service animals serving as aids for the disabled. If individuals must bring their pets on outdoor campus grounds, courtesy and respect must be extended to employees, students and visitors. Pets must be in control, either on a leash or voice command and may not be left unattended outside of buildings. The owner must also properly clean up after pets. Employees must inform their visitors that animals are prohibited inside University buildings, again with the exception of service animals serving as aids for the disabled.
